

LETTER FROM WASHINGTON
Washington City, D. C.
January, 14th, 1840.

Messrs. Editors,--

On yesterday the house of Reps. proceeded to the presentation of petitions for the first time since its organization. Whether the people are satisfied with this delay of their business to the late period, or not, I presume depends upon the facts and circumstances which have caused this delay. You are aware that as soon as the Speaker was elected, that he proceeded to the organization of the house by swearing in the members present. When the state of New Jersey was called in its order, no one appeared, but after the rest of the states had been called and Ohio members sworn in, the whole of the whig delegation from New Jersey came forward and demanded to be sworn, after their second rejection. The Speaker refused to swear in, any, but Mr. Randolph, and reported the facts to the house, whereupon the house went off in debate day after day, by a direct vote of yeas and nays they were again rejected. Subsequently on Tuesday the 7th inst. the Chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, offered a resolution, referring the whole matter of the New Jersey contest to that Committee with power to send for persons and papers. Here again the federal Whigs went off into another debate, arguing the same question of return over and over again, to prove that the Governor's certificate is of paramount authority to the expressed will of the people. Of course the democracy could not sustain a position so monstrous and absurd, which would be, in fact, a direct and open violation of all democratic principles, striking at once, a fatal blow at the fundamental principles of constitutional right. The right of the people to elect their own representatives. This question was not disposed of until yesterday by a call of the previous question: yesterday was sustained by the house and the matter referred to have we spent in debating this question, weeks of time which should have been devoted to the business of the nation. There is one consolation left for the democracy in this war of words: If thus, the democracy have triumphantly maintained the constitution, the genius of popular liberty, can once more plume her wings, and rise over the pollutions of Executive frauds and conceptions in all its native beauty. But if a self respect for the constitution had been regarded by the opposition, a self respect for the will of a people unquestionably expressed, a self respect for the business of the nation. This New Jersey question should, and would have been settled the second day of our meeting at furthest. But such is their desire for place and power and such their utter contempt for the will of the people, that they not only treated the subject as it they "had not been defeated" in their election, but undertook to prove that the certificate of the governor was a paper which the house could not get over. By the continuance of this struggle, the democracy acted only on the defensive; by which it is easy to determine who is accountable for this loss of time.

Petitions.--The house proceeded as far as the state of Massachusetts, when up came the subject of abolition, there we are, and when we shall get away from that place, is uncertain. No business can be done unless some mode is adopted for their disposition, during the present session: But no resolution can be adopted upon this subject, until a resolution day shall permit some one to offer it in order. The rules cannot be suspended for any proposition to that effect. Democracy is like a specie at par, as they say, but above par as the feds say, when they compare depreciated paper with specie.

Yours &c.
"HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE."
Reception of Gen. Jackson at New Orleans, on the 8th of January. The following interesting account of Gen. Jackson's reception at New Orleans on the 8th of January, we copy from the Picayune of the 9th inst.

"On leaving the boat a barouche with four horses was ready to receive him, from whence he was escorted, by the Legion and Washington Battalion, to the State House. As the procession passed along Canal Street, a dense mass of citizens thronged each side, and the numerous balconies were grinning with their fair burthen--ladies waving their handkerchiefs, while the silver-headed warrior bowed in acknowledgment of their salutations.

From the State House he was escorted to the public square, in front of the old cathedral, by the veterans of '14 and '15, the members of the legislature, many members of the city councils, and a large concourse of the citizens. Arrived at the public square, he was conducted to the cathedral, where an oration was delivered, after which he reviewed the troops in the square, the cannoniers meanwhile firing a salute. The part of the ceremonies over, he was escorted to his rooms at the St Louis Exchange by the military, after which they were dismissed.

New Orleans has won some fame for the brilliancy of her military displays, but the parade of yesterday exceeded any thing of the kind we have ever witnessed. All feelings of rivalry were forgotten, and the Legion and Washington Battalion turned out in concert. We never saw them look so much in advance than they did on this occasion, and the light of other days could be seen brightening in the old soldier's eyes as he contemplated the fine martial display before him. He who had led raw, undisciplined Tennesseeans and Louisiana militia to victory from the same spot, now beheld a well drilled and disciplined array of troops and his pleased countenance fully indicated his satisfaction.

In the evening, agreeable to the invitation of the manager, the General and his suite attended the St. Charles Theater. At the close of the act of the comedy then performing, the curtain was dropped and the anthem was played according to announcement. The curtain then rose, and Mr J. M. Hill delivered a poetical address from his own pen, to the Defender of New Orleans, the aged veteran who came.

"To bless the children of the sire he saved,"
The house was crammed from the pit to the dome, and the General twice arose and acknowledged the enthusiastic cheering of the multitude. Hail Columbia was then sung by the full company led by the St. Charles, and the white headed warrior left the theater amid the prolonged cheers of an admiring audience of some two thousand souls. This ends our brief and hasty written record of the day that will be remembered while New Orleans stands and the Mississippi flows.

NEW BACKLOG CUT.
From the Ohio Statesman.
The editor of the Cleveland Herald (not Gazette) appeals so strongly to our sympathies, that we are inclined to put up our pop gun, the only instrument of terror we supposed necessary to use against him. We are glad, however, he is so good with the rifle, and hope when we go to target shooting, that he will be more successful in finding some one capable of holding the priming than a friend of his we met of? We would advise the editor of the Herald, to study Mark Anthony's address, over the dead body of Caesar.

"I come to bury Caesar, not to praise him."
We have been in ten wild cat fights--four bear hugs--slew six catamounts with our own hands--chased forty and buffaloes across a hundred mile prairie--caught a thunderbolt on the point of our butcher knife and split it in two--originated six earthquakes, and stopped the progress of a hundred thousand whigs by putting a single ball in motion "solitary and alone," but we never stopped to cut fishworms in twain, for bait to catch gnuwos.

OHIO PENITENTIARY.
We have before us the Report of the Directors of the Ohio Penitentiary, made Dec. 29, 1839. It is an interesting document, and contains many facts of deep general interest. At that date there were in the prison 435 convicts, of which number 95 were males and 8 negroes are natives of Ohio. Since the establishment of this institution, only two white females have been sent to prison--neither of these natives of this state, speaking of which fact the directors pay a handsome and deserved compliment to the intelligence, virtue and moral excellence of our country-women. The number received during the past current year, were 172--there are 85, whose terms expire during the present year, the ages of the convicts are--from 10 to 15 years 6; from 15 to 20, 79; from 20 to 30, 229; from 30 to 40, 102; from 40 to 50, 44; from 50 to 60, 18; from 60 to 80, 7. Nearly one fourth of the whole number are young men--less than 21 years of age; and two thirds under 30 years of age. How strong is the proof here afforded that habits and character, for good, or for evil, are formed in early life!

The earnings of the prison, over and above all expenditures during the fiscal year, are 20,037.06. The unexpired time of all the prisoners, amount in the aggregate, to about two thousand years. The number of deaths for the year is 15; the health of the prisoners, being about the same as of the surrounding country. One prisoner by the name of Lake was shot, while attempting to escape, under circumstances perfectly justifiable. Almost every occupation is represented, there being 76 different kinds--among the rest, we find 3 merchants, 3 clerks, 2 physicians, 1 druggist, 1 lawyer, 1 preacher, 1 schoolmaster, 1 printer, and 15 of "no occupation."

Faithful and successful efforts have been made for the moral and religious instruction of the convicts. Under the charge of the Rev. Chas. Fitch, many have been taught to read; they have been furnished with books, and have heard divine service performed regularly on the Sabbath. The chaplain expresses his confidence, from his observation, in visiting the prisoners in their cells, during sickness, and in conversation with them, that many of them, particularly those in early life, are undergoing a reformation under the salutary discipline and instruction which they are receiving, which at the expiration of their terms, will restore them to society and guard them against further transgression; thus blending as he justly observes, "the ministrations of mercy with the inflictions of justice."

The Board speak in the highest terms of the efficient and upright manner in which the superintendent, W B Van Hook, Esq., has performed his duties. In this, we feel assured they but echo the voice of public opinion. S. Bul.

OHIO LEGISLATURE.
From the Ohio Statesman, January 24th.
A very great amount of local business is before the Legislature, and the duties of important committees are more arduous than at any previous session. The House agreed today to hereafter meet at 9 o'clock in the morning and 2 in the afternoon. Every question is examined with much minuteness--and though few of the speeches are of much length, they are always directed to the main point.

Both Houses have adopted Mr. Jenkins's resolution, declaring the power of the Legislature to repeal charters. There was not whiggery enough in the Legislature to make show of fight.

The last year of Gov. Vance's administration, the expenditures of Ohio were nearly $2,500,000,000!! As alarming as this was, poor bed ridden Whiggery never thought of economy then. Fifty or sixty thousand dollars in those days could be slipped into Judge Burnett's pocket, the federal leader of Ohio, without a cent of benefit to the State or its improvements--as an investigation would prove if ever had. We mean the subscription to the Cincinnati and Goshen turnpike, not one dollar of which was ever expended in extending that road. We have thrown this in here as convenient to contrast profusions and assertions with facts. Facts that dare not be disputed, as the records will prove for themselves.

O. Statesman.
FOREIGN NEWS.
The young Sultan of Turkey, has granted a charter to his subject which is creating a great sensation in Europe. (We hope it is not a bank note.)
Lord Palmerston has addressed a letter to the American minister in London, declaring the intention of the British Government to blockade all the ports of the Chinese Empire, and reduce the Emperor to submission, and exact compensation for the opium destroyed, by order of the Chinese Government.

The Chartists are still endeavoring to rise. They have induced some of the soldiers to desert to them.
Her Majesty has communicated in person to the privy council, her intention of marrying Prince Albert.
Hostilities have re-commenced between the French, and the Arabs, in Africa, near ancient Algiers.
A new infernal machine, was exploded near the palace Royal, on the 20th of Nov. No royal blood shed.
They are greatly improving their manufactures in France--their machinery is rivaling that of England. American grain and flour are in great demand in France free of duty--producing great relief to the poor classes, who have suffered so severely for so many months past from short crop and high prices.
